RED CROSS SOCIETY ORGANIZED IN CLOVERPORT

Enthusiastic Meeting Held. Forty-eight Names Given For Membership. More to be Added. Mrs. W. H. Bowmer Elected Chairman.

Last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. H. Bowmer, there were nearly fifty women, of this city, who came together in the interest of organizing a Red Cross Society in Cloverport. The women were greatly enthused at the meeting and they were exceedingly anxious to have the petition for the Red Cross Society sent in at once so as to start a campaign for getting members and to help in the Red Cross work in general. The meeting opened with a short patriotic program led by Mrs. Bowmer, after which the purpose of the Red Cross Society, its rules and regulations, and requirements for organizing were explained by Miss Elizabeth Skillman.

A vote was taken as to whether Cloverport should be a branch of the Louisville society or be a chapter. The majority voted for the latter so the petition was sent to Mr. Green, of Carrollton, Chairman of the Red Cross work in Kentucky.

Since the society at Cloverport will be known as the Breckinridge County chapter of the Red Cross, it has been suggested by Mrs. W. J. Piggott, of Irvington, that the towns in the county who are desirous of doing Red Cross work, form chapters of the Cloverport chapter.

Officers Elected.

Pending the organization, the women elected the following officers, who are to be sanctioned by the board of trustees: Mrs. W. H. Bowmer, Chairman; Mrs. H. N. Wood, Vice Chairman; Mrs. David B. Phelps, Treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Skillman, Secretary.

The chairman appointed the executive committee which includes: Mesdames Harry Newsum, S. P. Conrad, Ben Ridgeway, Byrns Severs, Frank Perry, L. T. Reid, A. N. Couch, Wick DeHaven, J. P. Keith, P. M. Smith, Frank English, Chas. Satterfield, Conrad Sippel, Chas. Brabant, Frank Payne, Misses Margaret Carter, Margaret Burn and Mildred Babbage.

The military relief committee will be composed of: Mrs. Harry Newsum, Chairman; Mesdames Sam P. Conrad, Ridgeway, Byrns Severs and Miss Margaret Burn.

Membership committee: Mrs. Frank Perry, chairman; Mesdames L. T. Reid, A. N. Couch, Wick DeHaven, Larkin Gibson and Miss Margaret Carter.

Publicity committee: Miss Leonora McGavock and Miss Mildred Babbage, chairmen; Mesdames Frank Mattingly, P. M. Smith, Frank English, Leon McGavock, Marion Weatherholt, and Jas. Ordrey.

Members Enrolled.

There were fifty names enrolled for membership, the membership fee being one dollar or more. One of the members headed the list of the membership fund with a twenty-five dollar subscription.

Besides the officers and those on the various committees, the following members were enrolled: Messrs J. C. Nolte, Ben Ridgeway, David Phelps, and Chas. Lightfoot; Mesdames Forrest Lightfoot, J. D. Babbage, Wick Moorman, A. R. Fisher, J. C. Nolte, Helen Adams, John Burr, Shelby Conrad, John Jarboe, A. A. Simons, Sallie Moorman, H. A. Oelze, Leonard Oelze, James Fitch, Amos Board of Hardinsburg, Edward Bowne, Harry Williams, of Nashville, and M. L. Dyer; Misses Martha Willis, Olivia Fallon, Mary Owen Oelze, and Edith Burr.

Red Cross Headquarters.

The headquarters for the Red Cross Society will be in the vacant store room on Main Street which is owned by Mrs. H. A. Oelze, who offered the room gratis. There will be a meeting at the headquarters, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All the officers, members, and as many men and women as are interested in the work of the Red Cross, are urged to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Lon Cowley Ill Just a Short Time. Admirable Character.

Irvington, July 7, (Special).—Mrs. Lon Cowley died at 5:30 o'clock Thursday morning, after several weeks illness of stomach and heart trouble. She leaves a husband, one daughter, Mrs. Glen Burger, one son Wm. Henry Cowley. Mrs. Cowley was 41 years of age, she professed faith in Christ when she was fourteen years old, her life was an open book to all, she was a loving wife and mother, always had a pleasant smile and kind word for all whom she came in contact with. Her maiden name was Mary Simmons, daughter of Sash Simmons. Funeral was held at Sandy Hill, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. J. R. Kyzar conducted the services. A large concourse of friends gathered to pay their last respects to this loved one. The community at large extends sympathy to the bereaved ones.

sonality and an affable manner that will be a valuable asset to him in his political career. He no doubt inherits his taste for politics from his mother, who at one time was prominent in the Juvenile Court work in Louisville. The News wishes him success in his campaign.

Robertson-Beard Quiet Home Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Robertson and Mr. Marvin Davidson Beard, of Hardinsburg, Ky., was solemnized quietly, Saturday June 23, at high noon at the home of the bride's, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Robertson, on Fourth Street. The Rev. Arthur Kasey, pastor of the Methodist Temple, performed the ceremony in the presence of the two immediate families.

The several reception rooms were charmingly decorated in quantities of Dorothy Perkins roses, blue cornflowers and daisies. The ceremony was performed in the living room before a prie-dieu, which was entwined with Dorothy Perkins roses tied with cornflower tulle.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite hand-made frock of pale pink crepe. Mentone made on straight lines and carried a French bouquet of Mrs. Ward roses, cornflowers and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony there was an informal luncheon and the dining room, where the bridal table was placed, the motif of pale pink and blue was artistically carried out. The table had as a centerpiece a tall French basket filled with roses and cornflowers and tied with blue tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Beard took a motor trip to French Lick Springs, where they will spend several days before going to Hardinsburg, where they will make their home.

SERGEANT MCCLINTOCK.

"OVER THERE"

The Thrill and the Hell of the Trenches, Described by an American Boy.

Sergeant Alexander McClintock of Lexington, Ky., and the Canadian Army Has Greeting Tale That Every American Will Read, For He Tells the Facts—Unadorned. Wounded, a Distinguished Conduct Medal Man, He Was Invalided Home, but Is Going "Out There" Again to Fight For Uncle Sam and His Allies. An Inspiring, Interesting, Personal Narrative, Full of the Spirit and Atmosphere of the Trenches.

No. 1. In Training

By Sergeant Alexander McClintock, D. C. M., 87th Overseas Batt., Canadian Gren. Guards.

FOREWORD.

Here is a literary product which is at once an admirable example of the force of simple realism in the description of things which are difficult of ordinary comprehension, and a handbook and guide for every prospective soldier of our armies.

Sergeant McClintock has not written stories about the war. He has written the war itself, reducing it, one might almost say, to words of one syllable, yet bringing to the reader's view, clearly and vividly, the various aspects of the great struggle, hidden to all except the man who is actually a part of it. His contribution to the history of the war must be classed as one which shines with a new light.

It is fascinating in its simplicity, yet thrilling in its convincing detail. It leads one, with ever-growing and compelling interest, from a casual conversation in a hotel in New York through scenes of strife and blood and thrilling conflict to the moment when the king and queen of England came to the bedside of a Kentucky youth in a London hospital to thank him in the name of their nation for his services in the cause which we have now come to recognize as that of world humanity.

Sergeant McClintock received the Distinguished Conduct medal before leaving England for home on leave. He is returning to accept a commission in the Canadian overseas forces. The story is told in McClintock's own unadorned way.

I DON'T lay claim to being much of a writer, and up till now I have never felt the call to write anything about my experiences with the Canadian troops in Belgium and France, because I have realized that a great many other men saw quite as much as I did and could tell me something about it. Of course I believed that my experience was worth relating, and

I thought that the matter published in the newspapers by professional writers sort of missed the essentials and lacked the spirit of the "ditches" in a good many ways in spite of its excellent literary style, but I didn't see any reason why it was up to me to make an effort as a war historian until now.

Now there is a reason, as I look at it. I believe I can show the two or three millions of my fellow countrymen who will be "out there" before this war is over what they are going to be up against and what they ought to prepare for personally and individually.

That is as far as I am going to go in the way of excuse, explanation or comment, call it what you will. The rest of my story is a simple relation of facts and occurrences in the order in which they came to my notice and happened to me. It may start off a little slowly and jerkily, just as we did not know what was coming to us, but like to add that it got quite hot enough to suit me later several times. Therefore, as my effort is going to be to carry you right along with me in this account of my experiences, don't be Continued on page 6

Lettuce Grown From Seed Raised in France.

Edward Gregory has cultivated a bed of lettuce this season which he is particularly proud of, because of the fact that the seed came from France. Mr. Gregory intends to let most of the lettuce go to seed so as to distribute the seed in this country.

It is a variety of head lettuce and grows to be as large as an ordinary size head of cabbage, the leaves are long, slender and very brittle. The flavor is very much like the American head lettuce.

GRAIN ELEVATOR AT HAWESVILLE BURNS

HAWESVILLE, Ky., July 3.—Fire of unknown origin totally destroyed the grain elevator of the Hawesville Elevator company about 11:30 o'clock last night. The loss is estimated at $15,000 with $2,000 insurance.

The elevator was owned by a corporation, Bullitt & Bullitt of Louisville being the principal stockholders. George Bently of this place, and manager of the Lancaster Loose Leaf house of Owensboro also owned some stock in the concern.

The fire was discovered by people living at Camellion across the river, and the alarm was spread by the sounding of whistles on that side of the river. The blaze damaged telephone and telegraph wires to the extent that all outside communication was cut off for several hours.

The forenoon was spent socially. After a picnic dinner one of the members, who brought her kodak, took the pictures.

At two o'clock the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Tom Gregory, the appointed leader for this month. The subject was "Personal Service". Miss Jennie Payne gave a talk on what the Bible teaches on this subject. Mrs. Brown read an interesting paper on what "Personal Service" meant to her. Before the close of the meeting each one present had given talks on this interesting subject. It was a day of spiritual uplift to every one present. There were sixteen present. All expressed themselves as having spent an enjoyable day, and left with a promise that it would be repeated.

U. S. TAKES OVER EXPORTS CONTROL

Fuels and Foods Now Subject to Licensing.

HOME NEEDS COME FIRST

Embargo on All Food Shipments For Sixty Days May Result—Firm Grip on Coal and Fuels Has Been Determined Upon.

Washington, July 9.—By the action of President Wilson in issuing a proclamation requiring the licensing of shipments to all countries of the most important export commodities, government control of American exports, authorized in a provision of the espionage act, became a reality. In a statement accompanying the proclamation the president desired the government's policy will be first to give consideration to American needs; next, to meet as far as possible the requirements of the allies, and lastly to supply the neutral countries wherever practicable. It is made clear that every effort will be made to see that no supplies reach the central powers.

The commodities named in the list put under control are coal, coke, fuel, oils, kerosene and gasoline, including bunkers; food grains, flour and meal, fodder and feeds, meats and fats; pig iron, steel billets, ship plates and structural shapes, scrap iron and scrap steel; ferro-manganese, fertilizers, arms, ammunition and explosives.

The inclusion of foodstuffs in the proclamation lends color to statements that the administration is considering the advisability of a complete embargo for sixty days on all food shipments to give the country time to ascertain the amount of its supplies and to give allied and neutral countries an opportunity to present a full program of their requirements.

The president, in his statement, said the government was trying first to ameliorate present food conditions and conditions that are expected to arise between now and the next harvest. Many officials, alarmed at the wheat shortage and the heavy drain the allies and neutrals are making on every kind of American food supplies, are urging an immediate embargo on food shipments.

Through control of coal and fuels the government intends to take a firm grasp on the situation. An agreement under negotiation will give the American and British governments control not only of allied tonnage but of neutral vessels as well.

Control of iron and steel was made necessary by war demands on the iron and steel industries. A shortage of steel in this country is threatened because of the large amount that is being diverted to munitions manufacture and the construction of the government's merchant fleet. Japan's heavy purchases of steel plates for merchant ship building made necessary that plates be put under control.

Specific regulations governing food exports and shipments of other commodities named in the list are expected to be issued by the president within a few days. Even if a complete embargo is not placed on food exports for a time it is known many restrictions will be made. The exports council, comprising three cabinet members and the food administrator, are drawing up a program to be submitted to the President immediately.

TWO BIG CONCERTS SECOND DAY of our Chautauqua, came to this country after graduating from the Conservatory of San Pietro Maitella of Naples, Italy. For six years he has been at the head of his own band, playing in and around New York. This is his first trip with his band west of the Alleghenies. Lenzo is in point of years only a boy, but he has already established his reputation as an incomparable leader. Though not quite as eccentric as Creatore, he creates considerable amusement by his imitations of the great band master. Of the band we can truthfully say that it is "The Biggest Little Band in America." Every player is an accomplished soloist. Their ensemble will do credit to a band of thirty pieces. The snap, dash, fire and feeling is all there. They play the masterpieces of music and at the same time cater to the love of popular numbers and the season's latest hits.

It is expected that one of the most popular numbers on the program will be the "Welfare March," composed by Signor Jno. Franco and dedicated by him to the Welfare Chautauquas.

An unusual feature of the band is the string orchestra. Sig. Franco is the soloist playing upon the peculiar instrument called by the Italians the "Wizzard." This strange and marvelous instrument is played like a xylophone, but is made of strings and resembles a harp or zither. Sig. Franco is a mechanical as well as a musical genius. He constructed his instrument with his own hands.

CHANCES TO SAVE Offered Through The Breckenridge News

By carefully reading the advertisements in The Breckenridge News you can often save money on your purchases. The things you need may be offered just a little bit cheaper today than they will be at any other time all this summer

The new rug for the parlor, the new dining room table, the new suit, the sack of flour, the pair of shoes or the new hat may be advertised at a saving worth while to the most discriminating buyer of the day

Don't lay this paper down until you have read every advertisement in its columns. Economical people do their buying through advertising—and they are putting money in the bank by so doing.

RED CROSS SOCIETY.

We are glad that Cloverport is rallying to the cause and organizing a Red Cross Society. Thanks be to the patriotic women of our town who have made it possible. This will be the first Red Cross Society for Breckinridge county and if there are no other branches formed from the society, no doubt every man, woman and child in the county will feel it their patriotic duty to become a member of the Breckinridge County Red Cross Society and wear a Red Cross button. Don't make yourself conspicuous by not wearing a button!

The Red Cross is one of the most humane organizations in the country. It is an International society and under the restrictions of the government, therefore it means something for us to have a Red Cross Society in our town.

The purpose of the Red Cross is to support the physicians and nurses, who are at the front caring for the wounded soldiers. It also provides in a measure for the dependents of the soldiers who are killed in battle.

If we are desirous of our American soldiers having the best care and attention that can possibly be given them, it behooves us to get busy and supply the adequate means whereby these things may be had.

If we haven't any one who is near and dear to us in the war, possibly our next door neighbor has, and when we stop and think of the Golden Rule, we cannot conscientiously do otherwise than to help our part towards our fellow-man and be thankful for the opportunity that we can do our bit in this great war.

Milwaukee has ceased to be proud of its reputation for the "Beer that Made Milwaukee Famous." In a recent publication of the by-products of that city, it is curious to note that not a word is said of the manufacturing of beer or any other beverages.

We notice several exchanges over the State are renouncing whiskey ads from now on, but there are still a few more who are not willing to turn them down. Whenever they do, it will not be long before Kentucky will be "bone dry."

The Breckenridge News is forty-two years old this month and is still surviving under the high cost of paper, but we don't see many fried chickens on the table.

We will soon have to establish "Safety Zones" street crossing regulations and parking places if we get many more "flivvers" in our city.

Remember the Chautauqua will be the big event in our town this summer. It will be July 26 27 and 28. Come and bring your family.

Those who did not get a chance to buy a Liberty Bond this spring, will possibly have a chance in the fall.

Tagore on American Women.

Women who want something very special and violent in their surroundings to keep their interests active prove their poverty of life. Apparently numbers of women as well as men in this country condemn the things that are commonplace. They are always hankering after something which is out of the common, straining their powers to produce a spurious kind of originality that merely surprises, though it may not satisfy. But such efforts are not a real sign of vitality. On the contrary, I think that they have been a cause of much of the unhealthiness in your society.—Rabindranath Tagore in Ladies' Home Journal.

Impatient if nothing very important seems to come of it at first. I felt a little envious myself at the gateway. But that was certainly one thing that didn't annoy me later.

In the latter part of October, 1915, I decided that the United States ought to be fighting along with England and France on account of the way Belgium had been treated. If for no other reason. As there seemed to be a considerable division of opinion on this point among the people at home, I came to the conclusion that any man who was free, white and twenty-one and felt as I did ought to go over and get into it single handed on the side where his convictions led him. If there wasn't some particular reason why he couldn't. Therefore I said goodby to my parents and friends in Lexington and started for New York with the idea of sailing for France and joining the Foreign legion of the French army.

Decides to Go to Canada.

A couple of nights after I got to New York I fell into conversation in the Knickerbocker bar with a chap who was in the re-enforcement company of Princess Pat's regiment of the Canadian forces. After my talk with him I decided to go up to Canada and look things over. I arrived at the Windsor hotel, in Montreal, at 8 o'clock in the morning a couple of days later, and at 10 o'clock that morning I was sworn in as a private in the Canadian Grenadier guards, Eighty-seventh overseas battalion, Lieutenant Colonel F. S. Melchior commanding. They were just getting under way, making soldiers out of the troops I enlisted with, and discipline was quite lax.

They at once gave me a week's leave to come down to New York and settle up some personal affairs, and I over-stayed it five days. All that my company commander said to me when I got back was that I seemed to have picked up Canadian habits very quickly. At a review one day in our training camp I heard a major say:

"Yes, for God's sake don't call me Harry or spit in the ranks. Here comes the general!"

We found out eventually that there was a reason for the slackness of discipline. The trouble was that men would enlist to get $1.10 a day without working for it and would desert as soon as any one made it unpleasant for them. Our officers knew what they were about. Conditions changed instantly we went on shipboard. Discipline tightened up on us like a rope on a coil.

We trained in a sort of casual, easy way in Canada from Nov. 4 to the following April. We had a good deal of trouble keeping our battalion up to strength, and I was sent out several times with other "monkeys" on a recruiting detail. While we were in the training camp at St. John's I made the acquaintance of a young Canadian who became my "pal." He was Campbell McFarland, nephew of George McFarland, the actor who is so well known on the American musical stage. He was a sergeant. When I first knew him he was one of the most delightful and amusing young fellows you could imagine.

The war changed him entirely. He became extremely quiet and seemed to be borne down with the sense of the terrible things which he saw. He never lost the good fellowship which was inherent in him and was always ready to do anything to oblige me, but he formed the habit of sitting, alone and silent, for hours at a time, just thinking. It seemed as if he had a premonition about himself, though he never showed fear and never spoke of the dangers we were going into, as the other fellows did. He was killed in the Somme action in which I was wounded.

I also had been made a sergeant on account of the fact that I had been at school in the Virginia Military Institute—that is, I was an acting sergeant. It was explained to me that my appointment would have to be confirmed in England and then reconfirmed after three months' service in France. Under the regulations of the Canadian forces a noncommissioned officer, after final confirmation in his grade, can be reduced to the ranks only by a general court martial, though he can escape a court martial, which I confronted with charges, by reverting to the ranks at his own request.

Forty-two hundred of us sailed for England on the Empress of Britain, sister ship to the Empress of Ireland, which was sunk in the St. Lawrence river. The steamer was, of course, very crowded and uncomfortable, and the eight day trip across was most unpleasant. We had to eat until we were sick of the sight of it. A sergeant reported one morning, "Eight men and twenty-two breakfasts absent." There were two other troop ships in our convoy, the Baltic and the Metagama. A British cruiser escorted us until we were 400 miles off the coast of Ireland. Then each ship picked up a destroyer which had come out to meet her. At that time a notice was posted in the purser's office informing us that we were in the war zone and that the ship would not stop for anything, even for a man overboard. That day a soldier fell off the Metagama with $700 in his pocket, and the ship never even hesitated. They left him where he had no chance in the world to spend his money.

"Make a Break!"

Through my training in the V. M. I. I was able to read semaphore signals, and I caught the message from the destroyer which escorted us. It read:

"Each ship for herself now. Make

We beat the other steamers of our convoy eight hours in getting to the dock in Liverpool, and, according to what seemed to be the regular system of our operations at that time, we were the last to disembark.

The majority of our fellows had never been in England before, and they looked on our travels at that time as a lark. Everybody cheered and laughed when they dusted off one of those little toy trains and brought it up to take us away in it. After we were aboard of it we proceeded at the dizzy rate of about four miles an hour, and our regular company humorist—no company complete without one—suggested that they were afraid, if they went any faster, they might run off the island before they could stop. We were taken to Bramshot camp, in Hampshire, twelve miles from the Aldershot school of command. The next day we were given "king's leave"—eight days, with free transportation anywhere in the British Isles. It is the invariable custom to give this sort of leave to all colonial troops immediately upon their arrival in England. However, in our case Ireland was barred. Just at that time Ireland was barred. Just at that time Ireland was barred. Just at that time Ireland was barred.

After that they really began to make soldiers of us. We thought our training in Canada had amounted to something. We found out that we might as well have been playing croquet.

After That They Really Began to Make Soldiers of Us.

We learned more the first week of our actual training in England than we did from November to April in Canada. I make this statement without fear that any other or man of the Canadian forces alive today will disagree with me, and I submit it for the thoughtful consideration of the gentlemen who believe that our own armies can be prepared for service here at home.

In this war every man has got to be a specialist. He's got to know one thing better than anybody else except those who have had intensive instruction in the same branch. And, besides that, he's got to have effective general knowledge of all the specialties in which his fellow soldiers have been particularly trained. I can illustrate this. Immediately upon our return from first leave in England we were divided into sections for training in eight specialties. They were: Bombing, sniping, scouting, machine gun fighting, signaling, trench mortar operation, bayonet fighting and stretcher bearing. I was selected for special training in bombing, probably because I was supposed, as an American and a baseball player, to be expert in throwing. With the other men picked for training in the same specialty, I was sent to Aldershot, and there for three weeks, twelve hours a day, I threw bombs, studied bombs, read about bombs, took bombs to pieces to see what made them tick and put them together again and did practically everything else that you could do with a bomb, except eat it.

Then I was ordered back along with the other men who had gained this intimate acquaintance with the entire bomb family, and we were put to work teaching the entire battalion all that we had learned. When we were not teaching we were under instruction ourselves by the men who had taken special training in other branches.

Also at certain periods of the day we had physical training and rifle practice. Up to the time of our arrival in England intensive training had been merely a fine phrase with us. During our stay there it was a definite and overpowering fact. Day and night we trained, and day and night it rained. At 9 o'clock we would fall into our ranks in huts which held from a half a whole platoon—from thirty to sixty men—and drop into exhausted sleep, only to turn out at 5 a. m. to give a sudden and exact imitation of what we would do to the Germans if they sneaked up on us before breakfast in six inches of mud. Toward the last, when we thought we had been driven to the limit, they told us that we were to have a period of real, intensive training to harden us for actual fighting. They sent us four imperial drill sergeants from the British grenadier guards, the senior foot regiment of the British army and the one with which we were affiliated.

It would be quite unavailing for me to attempt to describe these drill sergeants. The British drill sergeant is an institution which can be understood only through personal and close contact and is about as cordial as loose electricity. If he thinks a major gen-

CHAUTAUQUA BRINGS BOY SCOUT EXPERT

Chas. Daugherty An Authority On Boy Scout Movement.

HIMSELF AN "EAGLE SCOUT"

That the Chautauqua is an upbuilding force, and not merely a form of entertainment is best proven by the character of the people who hold up the Chautauqua ideals. The people who appear on the Welfare Chautauqua programs are all democratic in nature and love to mingle when off the platform with the people of the community. Don't be afraid to walk right up to any one of them and make yourself acquainted.

"Chic" Daugherty, for example, is usually surrounded by a flock of boys from the minute he strikes town. Boys are drawn to Daugherty as bees hover over a barrel of honey. It seems that some magic message is sent to every boy in town the minute he arrives. And it is worth while for boys to know him. He is the embodiment of clean and upright manhood. For years he was secretary of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A.

Of more general interest, however, is the fact that Mr. Daugherty is a boy scout enthusiast and an expert on all phases of boy scout work. Mr. Daugherty is himself an Eagle Scout, which is the highest rank obtainable, and is a Special Field Scout Commissioner, appointed by the National Headquarters in New York. He wears twenty-one merit badges.

The great aim of the Boy Scouts of America is to make every boy scout a better citizen. It aims to touch him physically—in the campcraft and woodcraft of the outdoor life. It seeks to develop him by observation and the knowing of things far and near, so that later on when he enters business life he may be alert and keen and so be able to add to the wealth of the nation. It teaches him chivalry and unselfishness, duty, charity, thrift and loyalty. It teaches him temperance and gives him the principles by which he may be healthy and clean. It teaches him patriotism in order that he may become a good citizen and do those things which every citizen ought to do to make the community and the land in which he lives the best in the world.

The boy scout movement neither promotes nor discourages military training, its chief concern being the development of character and personal efficiency of teen-age boys. Mr. Daugherty will be very glad, while here, to talk with all who are interested in boy scout work.

equal is wrong he'll tell him so on the spot in the most emphatic way, but without ever violating a single sacred tradition of the service. The sergeants who took us in charge to put on the real polish to our training had all seen from twenty to twenty-five years of service. They had all been through the battles of Mons and the Marne, and they had all been wounded. They were perfect examples of a type. One of them ordered all of our commissioned officers, from the colonel down, to turn out for rifle drill one day and put them through the manual of arms while the soldiers of the battalion stood around looking on.

A Call For Volunteers.

On June 2, after the third battle of Ypres, while McFarland and I were sitting wearily on our bunks during a strange hour in the afternoon when nobody had thought of anything for us to do, a soldier came in with a message from headquarters which put a sudden stop to the discussion we were having about the possibility of getting leave to go up to London. The message was that the First, Second and Third divisions of the Canadians had lost 40 per cent of their men in the third fight at Ypres and that 300 volunteers were wanted from each of our battalions to fill up the gaps.

"Forty per cent," said McFarland, getting up quickly. "My God, think of it! Well, I'm off to tell 'em I'll go."

I told him I was with him, and we started for headquarters, expecting to be received with applause and pointed out as heroic examples. We couldn't even get up to give in our names. The whole battalion had gone up ahead of us. They heard about it first. That was the spirit of the Canadians. It was about this time that a story went round concerning an English colonel who had been called upon to furnish volunteers from his outfit to replace casualties. He backed his regiment up against a barrack wall and said:

"Now, all who don't want to volunteer step three paces to the rear."

In our battalion sergeants and even officers offered to go as privates. McFarland and I were not accepted; our volunteers went at once, and we were re-enforced up to strength by drafts from the Fifth Canadian division, which was then forming in England.

In July, when we were being kept on the rifle ranges most of the time, all leave was stopped, and we were ordered to hold ourselves in readiness to go overseas. In the latter part of the month we started. We sailed from Southampton to Havre on a big transport, escorted all the way by destroyers. As we landed we got our first sight of the harvest of war. A big hospital on the quay was filled with wounded men. We had twenty-four hours in what they called a "rest camp." We slept on cobbles in shacks which were so utterly comfortable that it would be an insult to a Kentucky thoroughbred to call them stables. Then we were on the way to the Belgian town of Poperinghe, which is 150 miles from Havre and was at that time the rail head of the Ypres salient. We made the trip in box cars which were marked in French "Eight horses or forty men," and we had to draw straws to decide who should lie down.

In the Front Trenches.

We got into Poperinghe at 7 a. m., and the scouts had led us into the front trenches at 2 the next morning. Our position was to the left of St. Eloi and was known as "the island," because it had no support on either flank. On the left were the Yser canal and the bluff which formed its bank. On the right were 300 yards of battered down trenches, which had been rebuilt twice and blown in again each time by the German guns. For some reason, which I never quite understood, the Germans were able to drop what seemed a tolerably large proportion of the output of the Krupp works on this particular spot whenever they wanted to. Our high command had concluded that it was untenable, and so we, on one side of it, and the British, on the other, had to just keep it scouted and protect our separate tanks. Another name they had for that position was the "third cage." That was because the first fellows who moved into it made themselves nice and comfy and put up wire nettings to prevent any one from tossing bombs in on them. Thus, when the Germans stirred up the spot with an accurate shower of "whizz bangs" and "coal boxes," the same being thirteen pounders and six inch shells, that wire netting presented a spectacle of utter inadequacy which hasn't been equaled in this war.

They called the position which we were assigned to defend "the graveyard of Canada." That was because of the fearful losses of the Canadians here in the second battle of Ypres, from April 21 to June 1, 1915, when the first gas attack in the world's history was launched by the Germans, and, although the French on the left and the British on the right fell back, the Canadians stayed where they were put.

Right here I can mention something which will give you an idea why descriptions of this war don't describe it. During the first gas attack the Canadians, choking to death and falling over each other in a tight against a new and unheard of terror in warfare, found a way—the Lord only knows who first discovered it and how he happened to do it—to stay through a gas cloud and come out alive. It isn't pretty to think of, and it's like many other things in this war which you can't even tell in print, because the simple description would violate the nice ethics about reading matter for the public eye which have grown up in long years of peace and traditional decency. But this thing which you can't describe meant just the difference between life and death to many of the Canadians that first day of the gas.

As Down Broke We Made Out a Big Painted Sign Above the German Front Trench.

Official orders now tell every soldier what he is to do with his handkerchief or a piece of his shirt if he is caught in a gas attack without his mask.

The nearest I can come in print to telling you what the soldier is ordered to do in this emergency is to remind you that ammonia fumes oppose chlorine gas as a neutralizing agent and that certain emanations of the body throw off ammonia fumes.

Now that I've told you how we got from the Knickerbocker bar and other places to a situation which was just 150 yards from the entrenched front of the German army in Belgium I might as well add a couple of details about things which straightway put fear of God in our hearts. At daybreak one of our Fourteenth platoon men, standing on the firing step, pushed back his trench helmet and remarked that he thought it was about time for coffee. He didn't get any. A German sharpshooter, firing the first time that day, got him under the rim of his helmet, and his career with the Canadian forces was over right there. And then, as the dawn broke, we made out a big painted sign raised above the German front trench. It read:

WELCOME, EIGHTY-SEVENTH CANADIANS

We were a new battalion. We had been less than seventy-two hours on the continent of Europe, and the Germans were not supposed to know anything that was going on behind our lines!

We learned afterward that concealed telephones in the houses of the Belgian burgomasters of the villages of Dinkelshue and Henslingheist, near our position, gave communication with the German headquarters opposite us. One of the duties of a detail of our men soon after that was to stand these two burgomasters up against a wall and shoot them.

In concluding this first article I want to say frankly that any man who claims he is not afraid when for the first time he goes into that hell of fire on the western front is a liar, and I'll tell him so to his face. Later we became impervious, but that first day I prayed, and I would have heat and prayed only my knees shook so.

The five remaining articles in this remarkable series will appear once each week. They are as follows:

No. 2—The Bomb Raid.

The great preparations and rehearsing for this attack. Volunteers for the job taken behind the line where the German trenches are exactly reproduced. The days of preparation. Heretofore unwritten detail of modern trench raids. This article concludes with the men going out to their job.

No. 3—"Over the Top and Give 'Em Hell."

The English Tommy's battle cry as he breaks from his trench. The bomb raid and what happened. Of sixty that started forty-six failed to return because the Germans had prepared and mined the trench. Graphic description of Sergeant McIntock's terrible experience.

No. 4—Shifted to the Somme.

Sergeant McIntock takes part in the greatest of all battles and tells of the hell of it. "The front in Belgium was really a rest sector in comparison with it," he says. The extensive preparations of the allies for open warfare afterward abandoned because of the failure of expected developments.

No. 5—Wounded in Action.

This article describes the terrible fight, the dead and dying, the loss of a pal and the final falling of McIntock in No Man's Land. Simply told, it is one of the most remarkable descriptions of a battle by a participant ever put together.

No. 6—Decorated For Bravery; Home and Uncle Sam.

This concluding article of the series relates in detail how England cares for the wounded. How the king and queen came to the bed of an American boy and decorated him in a London hospital for gallantry. Interesting, intimate and amusing incidents told by and of the wounded Tommies. Trying to fight for Uncle Sam.

AUSTRIAN AMNESTY PLANS

Decree of Emperor Charles Will Release 18,000 Persons.

Amsterdam, July 9.—The amnesty decree of Emperor Charles of Austria will mean the release of 18,000 persons, according to Vienna advices to the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin, a copy of which has been received here.

Advices received from other sources contain strong protests against the decree of amnesty and express astonishment and dismay at this "far-reaching disavowal of the state idea." These protests evidently arise from German sources in Austria.

Woman Named to Office.

Gary, Ind., July 9.—Mrs. Kate Wood Ray, president of the Gary Civic Service club, who was appointed police commissioner several years ago, but who was held ineligible for the place because Indiana women did not then have the right of suffrage, has since been named park commissioner by Mayor R. O. Johnson.

Thousands Wear New Limbs. London, July 9.—It is officially announced that 8,805 artificial limbs have been made for soldiers by private firms at a cost of $636,000, and that more than 7,000 additional men who have lost limbs are waiting to be supplied.

RUSS OFFENSIVE CLOSE TO HALICZ

Armies Approaching Key to Lemberg.

FRENCH REPULSED GERMANS

British Report Severe Air Fighting, Carrying Out Number of Successful Raids on Enemy—Artillery Action On Both Sides Lively.

London, July 9.—Semi-official reports indicate that the Russian offensive is spreading to the north and south of Halicz, in eastern Galicia, which was virtually under the guns of General Brusiloff when the advance of a year ago came to a standstill. Halicz is important as the key to Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, and is about sixty miles southeast of that city.

Three armies now are engaged on a front of more than thirty miles along the Narayuvka river. The enthusiasm among the troops is increasing. A train carrying 500 sailors from Rova, who organized the "storming battalion," and wear shoulder ribbons inscribed, "To the trenches," has passed through Petrograd.

Vigorous attacks by Teutonic forces in an effort to recapture ground gained by the Russians in their new offensive in eastern Galicia were defeated, the Petrograd war office announces.

"In the direction of Zlochoff the enemy launched energetic counter attacks on the front at Godov and the wood west of Koutchuy in an attempt to dislodge our troops from the positions captured in the battle. All these attacks were repelled. Assaults west of Bychka by troops in dense columns, supported by armored motor cars, were repulsed.

"East and southeast of Brezany the enemy carried out an intense artillery fire. Attempts by large enemy reconnaissance parties to attack our advanced posts southwest of the village of Chihalin were repelled."

The Germans launched another violent attack on the Alsace front and, as in the case of their recent attempt to capture important positions along the Chemin-Des-Dames, met with determined resistance from the French and suffered heavy losses. The attack was delivered in four sectors.

On the Verdun front, west of the Meuse, the French scored a brilliant success. Three strongly organized salients were captured and held against counter attacks.

"On the left bank of the Meuse, after brief artillery preparation, our troops brilliantly captured three strongly organized salients, one west of Dead Man Hill and the other two southwest of Hill 304. German counter attacks against the conquered positions were repulsed," says the Paris statement.

Severe air fighting is reported by the British statement, which says: "The enemy again displayed the greatest activity in air fighting, which continued throughout the day. Hostile aircraft worked in large formations which were frequently broken up by our pilots.

"Our airmen carried out a number of successful raids. In the course of which the enemy's airdromes, depots and troops were attacked with bombs and machine gun fire and considerable damage caused. Six enemy machines were brought down in combats and ten more were driven down out of control. Eight of our machines are missing.

"Except for artillery activity on both sides at several points along the front there is nothing further to report."

OUR BOYS ABROAD RAID CANDY SHOPS

But "Sammies" Give Gold
In Exchange For Sweets.

A "FOUNTAIN PEN ARMY"

Frenchmen Note the Number of Those Articles Carried in the Blouse Jackets of the Americans—Yankess Warm Up to Canadians—Naval Officers in White Take Eye of Fair Parisiennes.

The demand for candy is strong in France from the American troops, but it has been met satisfactorily, although the boys judge the prices high. The beer they generally condemn, not for its quality only, but for its warmth. "Don't seem much of a place," was the comment, followed by the anxious query, "Can we have a better time in Paris?"

Money changing involves mental anxiety, but 5 francs are offered as the equivalent of a dollar by the shopkeepers and readily accepted. It surprised the French to be told that these Americans still were paid in gold.

France began to recognize the value of athletics a few years before the war, which confirmed their importance. It is possible the new American allies will provide France with a long felt want in popularizing baseball.

"A Fountain Pen Army," chaffed a Frenchman as he noted the number of those articles that the Americans carried in their blouse pockets and seemed to be part of their equipment. "I am an old man for the army," said a corporal, answering a query on what motive brought him to France, "but I have come to help wipe kaisers off the earth."

The American camp in France is splendidly situated on high ground and has been built within the month. It is lighted by electricity and has a fine water supply. The Y. M. C. A., which has installed a tent at the landing place, will open a large hut soon. The camp has taken on an American atmosphere.

It failed in no respect to meet the requirements of the overwhelming tide of newcomers. It supplies picture postcards to large numbers and there is an "American bar," but American in name only. Ice cream soda is sought in vain.

An old looking French territorial who is on sentry duty along the docks, his hair grayed by three long years of service, hunched on the Americans, doubtless thinking his days of labor were now drawing to a close. The women smile and feel their hearts lighter as they watch this old pledge of the older democracy's aid.

In the arrival of the troops children chased pennants that the American boys threw among them from crowded decks as the ships passed along the quays and rejoiced over every band as it headed its regiment, for it is seldom that bands are heard now in France.

Chum at Once With Allies.

The fraternization of the Americans with the English, Canadians, Australians and French is remarkable, and the new arrivals are being received everywhere with open arms and open hearts. Last month nearly all the British troops met having near relatives in the British Isles have been coming to Paris on leave, and so the newly landed Americans find plenty of comrades able to speak their common language.

The Yankess warmed up particularly to the Canadians, among whom are many Americans, but the greatest surprise came at the way the French officers and police fraternize with their new allies. The warmest feeling exists between the French and British soldiers and officers, of course, but when they first met three years ago as allies they were too busy fighting for their lives to spend much time in friendly intercourse.

The Americans, however, are landing just at the time when the allies have the Germans "on the hip" and the French are throwing off their clamminess to welcome the Yankee tars and marines affectionately.

Another factor is that after three years' contact with the British nearly every French person knows a few words of English—hello, cheers, good luck and similar expressions—and they are using them over and over to the Americans.

Paris Women Chained.

The appearance of American naval officers in white duck summer uniforms in the smart Paris restaurants causes gasps of astonished delight, especially among the fair Parisiennes, who admire the chic, cool appearance of the officers.

Since the arrival of the Americans the police have had to wink at the law prohibiting singing and music in cafes and restaurants, as it is impossible to prevent the sailors, marines and regulars from gathering in quarters and teaching the Canadians and Australians the newest ragtime ultra direct from America.

Too Young to Work.

Hundreds of boys who gave false ages to get work in New England factories lost jobs because too young to get registration certificates required by employers.

To Keep Slackers Out.

Bills are now in congress to bar forever from this country men who have avoided military service.

Contralto and Pianologist.

Helen Barton is more than an accompanist. She is a worthy partner to Hazel Munger Kraft in their concerts. Miss Barton sings well, she plays the piano as few can, and she is also gifted in playing upon the Hawaiian instruments used in one number of their programs. She has been a member of the Kraft Company so long that the program moves without a hesitating moment. The last day of the Chautauqua would be a big day if the Kraft Company was the only attraction.

A BUSINESS TALK

The New Idea of Co-Operation

The big new idea in modern business is co-operation between groups of individuals as well as individuals of a group. The groceryman, the hardware dealer, the manufacturer, the farmer, and the bank can all co-operate with the result that business will be more prosperous and finances more stable. Intelligent co-operation with all our customers has been responsible for the growth of this bank. We are in business for profit, but we aim to get it through unselfish service to all our depositors, regardless of the size of their accounts, rather than through a selfish solicitation of deposits. Talk with us about your business and financial problems.

The Whale's Appetite.

A whale's appetite is phenomenal. His chief diet consists of jellyfish. He has simply to open his mouth and paddle along leisurely in order to take in the method adopted by the whalebone whale. The sperm whale, on the contrary, captures huge squids weighing often several tons. Like his brother the whalebone whale, he must be constantly on the lookout for food; otherwise he would starve. As many as fourteen seals have been taken from a thirty foot "killer."
